Mr. H. C. Berry, Baltimore, Md., writes: "For a great number of years I suffered greatly with Eczema of the scalp, which during the warm weather tormented me almost to death. I saw several of the best Southern physicians but none of them were able to do anything for me. A traveling companion induced me to try a bottle of Hancock Liquid Sulphur. I first used it diluted and it greatly relieved me. Since then I have used it natural strength and it has cured me completely. I cannot speak too highly of it and will gladly say more to anyone who desires to know just what it has done for me."

IMPORTANCE OF FEEDING AND COMFORT

Brooding Laboratory Used at Kansas State Agricultural College.

The two most important factors in chick raising are comfort and proper food, according to N. L. Harris, superintendent of the Kansas agricultural college poultry farm.

"The little chick, whether naturally or artificially hatched, should not be given anything to eat until it shows signs of being decidedly hungry, which will usually be in about 36 to 48 hours," comments Superintendent Harris. "One of the first feeds that the young chick should receive is fine sand or commercial chick grit and a good drink of sour milk or buttermilk if possible. More digestive troubles in incubator chicks are caused by lack of grit than by any other one thing."

"One of the essentials in maintaining good digestion is a liberal supply of either sour milk or buttermilk. In a few hours after the sand and milk have been fed, a very small quantity of hard boiled egg, including the shell, chopped fine and mixed with bread crumbs or rolled oats, may be given. A good proportion is one part egg and five parts bread crumbs or rolled oats."

Mash for Young Chicks.

"On the second day equal parts of cracked wheat and corn should be scattered in a litter. At the same time a mash consisting of 18 parts of corn meal, 21 parts of wheat bran, four parts of bone meal, and two parts of granulated charcoal should be given. The charcoal is not a feed but acts as a regulator. The mash should be fed in shallow troughs that are kept scrupulously clean. If chicks have a free range, this mash may be kept before them at all times. If, however, they are confined to small pens, only what they will clean up in about 20 minutes should be given them."

"During the first week or ten days it is best to feed five times a day, after which time three times daily is sufficient. As soon as possible whole wheat and whole kafir should take the place of the cracked grains. Whole kafir is a splendid feed for young chicks.

"Where an abundant supply of sour milk is not available it will be found necessary to add half a pound of corn and meat scrap to the dry mash after the first week. This should gradually be increased to reach four pounds at the end of the fourth week."

Fond of Onions.

"When the hatch is brought off early and there is not an abundance of green shoots, it will be found beneficial to feed an onion once or twice daily. Slice the onion crosswise so as to form rings. Onion is highly relished by young chicks and is especially desirable on cold, damp days. Later in the season, when it is possible to allow the young chicks to run out for green food, the question of exercise does not need to be considered."

"One of the most important features in raising young chicks is not to overfeed, and one of the best methods of feeding is to allow the young chicks all they care to eat until noon, at which time they should be allowed to become hungry, even to the point of crying a little. At night they should be given a liberal supply of feed so they will go under the cover with full crops."

Comfort Is Keynote.

"The keynote to success in raising young chicks is comfort. If the chicks are given sufficient to eat and plenty of exercise and are not allowed to become chilled they will thrive and return ample profit for the care given them. They must have a properly constructed house where the heat is sufficient to warm them quickly if they become chilled. All their quarters must be kept perfectly dry and clean. No chick can be comfortable if compelled to remain in damp or dirty places."

CONTROL GAPES IN CHICKENS

Little Danger of Trouble If Youngsters Are Kept Off Ground and Out of Wet.

The gapes often cause heavy loss in a flock of young chickens. If care is taken to keep the chicks off of the ground and to keep them out of the wet there need be little danger. Gapes are caused by small worms that fasten themselves to the inside wall of the windpipe. They thus obstruct the passage of the air and cause suffocation. The gape is a parasite in the common earthworm. When chicks are permitted to run at large and especially when their runs are on wet ground or wet grass they pick up many earthworms. When the ground is very wet, as after a rain or even in the morning after a heavy dew, many of these worms come to the surface. The chicks pick them up and thus introduce the gapeworms into their system.

Some ground that has long been used for chicken runs may become badly infested with gapeworms. A change of location is advisable. Plow up the old range, grow a crop on it and in a year or two it will likely be free from parasites.—Ohio State University.

UNLIMITED RANGE FOR HENS

Does Not Necessarily Mean That Fowls Should Be Given Freedom of Stables and Sheds.

Unlimited range has its advantages, but if unlimited range means that the fowls have the privileges of the stables, wagon sheds and roosting on the wheels and machinery, then the unlimited range is a nuisance. To give poultry plenty of room does not imply that the fowls should go where they please. A hen has no place in a stable any more than a cow has any right in a poultryhouse.

Little by little the droppings accumulate during the season until everything is too filthy to handle, and the work of cleaning will be more than the real value of the fowls. Keep poultry away from other stock.

GRIT SUPPLY FOR CHICKENS

Lime in Some Form Must Be Furnished Laying Hen to Encourage Production of Eggs.

Grit should be supplied to chickens at all times, as it aids digestion. Lime in some form must be supplied to the laying hen, to keep up her supply, which is so heavily drawn upon during egg production.

Grit can be purchased in commercial form, or coarse sand and small stone will do. Lime can be purchased in the form of oyster shells, though old plaster or dry cracked bones are fairly good.

MARKETING THE DUCKS' EGGS

Most Buyers Make No Quotations Except Early in Spring—Pure White Egg Preferred.

The demand for ducks' eggs at a good price is limited and not nearly as general as the demand for hens' eggs. The quality of ducks' eggs on the average market was poor until people began to keep Indian Runner ducks and to build up a trade in first-class eggs. A good demand for ducks' eggs exists about Easter time at prices usually several cents a dozen higher than for hens' eggs, but during the rest of the year the average price for ducks' eggs has been about the same as for hens' eggs.

Most buyers make no quotations for ducks' eggs except early in the spring. Since three ducks' eggs weigh about the same as four hens' eggs, ducks do not appear to be as profitable for the production of market eggs as fowls.

A trade is being established gradually in some markets for fancy nearby ducks' eggs which bring higher prices than hens' eggs, and the demand seems to be increasing. Pure white eggs are preferred and usually bring the highest price. These eggs should be marketed frequently, as they depreciate in quality more rapidly than hens' eggs, especially in hot weather. The market for eggs should be investigated carefully by those who intend to raise breeds of the egg-laying type of ducks, such as the Indian Runner.

WAY TO PREVENT EGG EATING

Provide Low, Covered Nests and Dark as Possible—Dose of Cayenne Pepper Is Good.

A good way of preventing egg-eating is to provide low, covered nests. It is also a good idea to have the nests as dark as possible. This can be done by stretching a curtain partly across one corner of the house and having all the nests in the darkened corner. Barely enough light should enter for the hens to see the nests. The nests should be covered and so low that the hen barely has room to creep on and off. When unable to stand upright in a nest, it is impossible for her to get at the eggs with her beak.

Another method that is often recommended is to give the egg-eater a good dose of cayenne pepper. This is done by making a small opening in the end of an egg and drawing a part of its contents. The egg is then filled with cayenne pepper, while mixes with the egg-substance left in the shell. When ready, the egg is placed in full view on the poultry house floor. The egg-eaters immediately pounce upon it, and the coughing and sneezing that results is evidence that the treatment is effective.

Wants to Develop Her Soul.

Defying paternal authority and scoring present-day methods of education, Miss Violetta Wilson, daughter of J. Stitt Wilson, the former mayor of Berkeley, has withdrawn from the University of California. She announced that it was her intention to develop her own soul and that she intended to get an education from real life and not one the whole significance of which lay in a college diploma. Miss Wilson registered in letters and sciences at the university last August, but after a few months decided that her studies were hampering rather than assisting her mental growth. So, despite the wishes of her parents, she left the classroom.—San Francisco Chronicle.

The Jar.

John D. Rockefeller was congratulated by a New York reporter on his recent gift of $1,275,000 to education. "It must be a fine feeling," said the reporter, "to give away millions." "You get used to it," said Mr. Rockefeller. "To stop giving is what would jar me. I'm afraid I'm like the retired business man whose wife said, the first day of his retirement: 'Father, what's the matter? You look so worried.' 'Well, no wonder I'm worried,' said he. 'I've never before had nothing to worry about.'"

Horse Has Ragtime Habit.

A horse has an ear for music. A Cleveland horse has a preference for ragtime. When he heard the notes of a popular song from a phonograph the other day in a store he trotted right across the sidewalk, dragging a Wells-Fargo express wagon after him. The wagon became wedged in the door, and the animal, unmindful of the screams of women and shouts of clerks, set his ears forward and listened to the song, allowing himself to be led away by Joseph Davis, the driver, only when the phonograph had been shut off.

Tommy Learns to Eat Frogs.

From the French comrades British soldiers in Macedonia have learned to appreciate the value of frogs as a supplement to the bill of fare. The hind legs served on toast make an excellent savory.

The men enjoy the sport of catching the frogs with bits of meat tied to the end of a string. The sport, besides providing a welcome addition to the cuisine, helps to reduce the strength of the froggy chorus, whose carols make night hideous.—London Globe.

Well Supplied.

"Not me," replied the easy-going man. "I always have more of my own than I can use to advantage."

Things Are Not as They Seem.

The unpronounceable names of the Mexican and European war zones have nothing on the names of City Engineer Jeup. His mail has come addressed to every name from Mr. B. Geo Up to Mr. B. Jesus, but it remained for an Indianapolis teacher to spend a year in digging out his identity.

For months she had heard a fellow teacher speak of her brother-in-law, Mr. Yorp. During the recent vladuct trouble his opinions on the matter were quoted frequently. For months this teacher had also read of Mr. Jeup, the city engineer.

Finally, when the vladuct troubles had reached their climax, she scanned the papers eagerly every evening to see how much longer she would have to walk across. Engineer Jeup held exactly the opinions of Mr. Yorp. Suddenly light burst on her befuddled brain. Rushing up to her teacher friend, she asked eagerly, "How does your brother-in-law, Mr. Yorp, spell his name?" "Jeup," came the answer with a mild look of surprise.

Eureka! Mr. Yorp, the brother-in-law, was Mr. Jeup, the city engineer. But the name was Yorp. O! as in off. Can you pronounce it?—Indianapolis News.

LOOK YOUNG AND HANDSOME AGAIN BY DARKENING YOUR GRAY HAIR WITHOUT DYES.

While it is no disgrace to have gray, streaked or prematurely gray hair, it is unnecessary in this day and time. Simply shampoo your hair and scalp with Q-Ban Hair Color Restorer. After doing this a few times not a trace of gray can be seen, but all your gray hair and entire head of hair will have become so evenly dark, soft, fluffy and healthy that no one would suspect you had applied Q-Ban. It is no dye, but a ready-to-use liquid, absolutely harmless. Big bottle sent prepaid for only 50c by writing Q-Ban Laboratories, Memphis, Tenn., or sold by druggists. Be careful not to accept substitutes or harmful dyes, but insist on having Q-Ban Hair Color Restorer.—Adv.
